Meaningful representation: Parliament and electoral reform

A proud legacy of change

Canada has always been a progressive nation open to bold new ideas. Our Parliament has produced cornerstones of our Canadian identity, such as enshrining our Charter of Rights and Freedoms and creating our public health care system.

Change for the worse

Stephen Harper's secretive regime is now blocking Canadians from knowing what happens in committees and even provides misleading information to Canadians and to Parliament.

Liberals stand for open, fair and strong democratic representation

The Liberal Party of Canada believes that Parliament should belong to the people instead of the Prime Minister. Liberals are committed to exploring parliamentary and electoral reform in order to realign our institutions with democratic principles and to ensure more meaningful and effective representation.
